Hi Trish,

Here is my approved plan. There is one of the planners signatures missing. Will look into if we need to get that updated.

Please be advised that the planning team at the NOC (C/Supt Carson Pardy) has been instructed (with clear objectives from me) to work on a few plans that will be integrated as appendixes.

1. Overall execution plan (my vision: fully integrated PLT approach engaged on negotiations and de-escalation, reduction of the overall foot print and return to normalcy by demobilization – voluntary or by intervention).
2. Support Denis Hull in completing the Exit/Egress (partial) plan.
3. Support OPS planning team the Controlled Zone Hardening plan.

I will be requesting the NOC team to complete an enforcement strategy plan once we have the new control zone established based on what we are left with.

I currently have the POU group working on a containment plan of the controlled zone for next weekend. It is just in the conceptualization phase that has an objective of preventing the party next weekend. This is not approved by me and there are PLT and Legal aspects that I need to consider given the State of Emergency order in place. A lot of command table discussion on this still to be done before I make my final decision.

A lot of planning preparation done at my command table today. We are ready for tomorrow. Well as ready as we can be not fully knowing what is happening.

Denis advised me that you sent him a message about OPP supporting him. What does that look like and has interoperability (communication wise) been sorted out through the SCC?

Thanks

Call if you want to discuss.

Will be in my command post approving some messaging. Note I am recommending no messaging from the Chief tomorrow (based on input from my whole command table) as we are not quite sure what to expect tomorrow. Also, I have approved that as soon as PLT start engaging tomorrow morning, I have approved a full presence but an educate and discourage vs enforcement approach in both the Red zone and surrounding area to support the initiative to reduce the footprint.
